“America’s Natural Wonders”

Travel with renowned naturalist and educator Bob DeLoss as his camera takes travelogue cinema guests on a journey from Hawaii to Maine to explore some of the fascinating sights of “America’s Natural Wonders”. Towering volcanoes with their massive flows of lava are featured along with a spectacular piece of footage in the depths of the waters of Hawaii’s unusual oceanic life. On the mainland we visit Death Valley, Monument Valley and Canyon Lands National Park. Perhaps the most beautiful of our nations National Parks is the mighty Teton Range of Wyoming. Yellowstone, America’s first national Park is explored. Knoxville, Tennessee captures the beauty of azaleas and spring flowers blossoming. Our last stop is in Acadia National Parks in Maine. For the traveler who would like to see many of the great travel destinations in all of its glory this is a film to be seen.
